

A RELOCATION CASE STUDY

DON'T LET THE PROSPECT OF BIG CHANGE OVERWHELM YOU

 At Public Practice Recruitment Ltd we recently supported candidate, John, to secure a role on the other side of the globe.

 John is currently relocating with his family from the Middle East (where he has been working for the last ten years) for an exciting role as an Senior Audit Manager.

Do you think accountants should always be ready to consider a change?

It is always worthwhile keeping up to date with the market, keeping your CV and training up to date as things can change very quickly, as this year has shown!

What prompted you to work with Public Practice Recruitment Ltd?

When I saw that they dealt solely with practice jobs, I decided to send off my CV. I ended up getting the first job that was presented so that was brilliant!

While pursuing this BIG change did you value the support of PPR Ltd?

Garry was very attentive and proactive with really good relationship skills, upbeat and positive, and you feel you have an ally in the recruitment process.

When you secured the role to enable your BIG change, did you feel daunted?

It was exciting but a little scary. I had a lot of things to manage apart from job hunting: shipping, schools, closing down everything properly. Naturally I created a spreadsheet!

And now you're here and ready to start - any regrets?

I'm really excited about starting in the new role, and meeting new colleagues and clients. Being in a new location is also great. I just need to get used to the rain!

'I wouldn't hesitate recommending Public Practice Recruitment Ltd. It took a lot of stress away having the process taken care of.'
